KOWLOONG.

Persons of an enquiring turn of mind have of late been asking whether any may doubtless be adduced that at certain periods known to the inspectors, police not only should and ought, but actually did, visit the locality in question during and between certain hours. The only answer, of course, is "We didn't see them," and this is too like the celebrated case of the man who produced 10 witnesses who "didn't see him steal the ducks" to carry much weight. Still complaints have reached our ears though we believe no formal representation has been made to the Police authorities, and no harm can follow from the attention of the Superin-endent being directed thitherwards. The recent murder of Yancey certainly shews that the police are not abroad at all hours, or at least in the neighbourhood of the houses which most require protection; and as we understand that police rates are levied on the lots at Kowloong, the owners are fairly entitled to the protection for which those sums are paid. It would seem of the highest importance to the interests of British Kowloong that particular attention be paid to rendering it thoroughly secure as regards life and property. We do not mean, because one murder has been committed, to argue a general insecurity, but it certainly increases a public feeling in that direction. It is undoubted that many would be glad to make Kowloong a temporary residence at times, were not a feeling of being cut off from help in case of attack, very prevalent. The prosperity of Kowloong would materially aid that of the Colony, and His Excellency the Governor has long endeavoured to influence public opinion in its favor. By an occasional stay there he would do much to raise the now depreciated value of lots; and yet more might be done it the commodore were requested to keep a gunboat or two there within an easy distance of the shore, a rocket or other signal ensuring instant help from her crew. We do not think that her services would often, if ever, be required, but the feeling of safety she would induce would be of much service. But over and above all a stringent police supervision is an absolute necessity and however excellent it may now be there seems to be room for improvement which will doubtless be

It is of course impossible to say what may be result of to-day's discussion in the Legislative Council upon the build-port reaches us : but we have strong hopes that a most important modification will take place in one particular. Regulations which are admirable and most necessary as regard Chinese houses, forming portions of immense blocks of buildings are, not only often needless, but absolutely oppressive if applied to European houses, especially to that large portion which are partially or absolutely detached from surrounding buildings. We do not however imagine that it was the intention of the Governor or his advisors to impose upon—say—the Peak bungalow the same conditions which attach to the crowded tenements of Bonham Strand,

SUMMARY JURISDICTION COURT October 13, 1868.

Before the Hon. H. J. BALL.

THE "KINSHAN" CASE.

W. Cotter c. T. Benning, $500, for false imprisonment on board the steamer Kin. shan.—Mr Pollard, Q. C., instructed by Mr Hazeland, appeared on behalf of the defendant; and Mr Hayllar, instructed by Mr Sharp, for the plaintiff. This case arises out of the notorious

Kinshan affair, which has now resolved itself into a claim for damages advanced Cotter, the chief officer of the Chunhois against the master of the Kinshan for false imprisonment

Mr Hayllar said that the facts of the case were notorious, but he notwithstanding described them and stated his case. The Chunhoi, he stated, had her colors flying. and on the Kinshan's approach Mr Cotter ordered that the colors should be lowered half-mast and then raised again as a signal to the Company's steamer to show her flag. As the latter had no colors flying, this was done; a blank gun was fired when the Kinshan stopped. It was not, however, the intention of the plaintiff to detain the Kinshan, and he lowered a boat and went off to explain matters; but so soon as he got on board, the defendant turned back and took plaintiff to Hongkong, where he was detained for two hours. The detention. continued the learned counsel, was totally illegal: and whatever Cotter had done (unless the acts amounted to treason and felony) the arrest was an illegal one; it was the arrest of a private person without a warrant; while that private person was not guilty of treason or felony. thought the arrest took place or the detention commenced?

Mr Hayllar replied that the arrest, he believed, took place beyond the Court's Jurisdiction, but that he was continued while they came into Hongkong waters, and the two hours' detention was in Harbor. There was no reasonable ground either for the arrest or the detention until the committal of felouv had been proven. Whether plaintiff was justified in what he did or not, it was unnecessary to inquire: plaintiff acted in strict accordance with what was called maritime ceremonials, and fired simply to point out to Captain Benning that he should hoist his fiag; and it was merely an act of courtesy on the part of Mr Cotter to go on board and explain the matter to the Captain. Defendant might have thrust Mr Cotter out of the ship, instead of which he saw fit to take the law in his own hand; and it was only just and fair that Mr Cotter should get damages for an insult which had been so publicly spoken of. Plaintiff was then put in the box, and being sworn, stated that he was chief officer of the gunboat Chunhoi, and was in the employ of the Governor of the Kwangtung province. Mr Pollard here objected, saying that it was not sufficient to have Mr Cotter in the witness-box to prove the status of the employ. He might be boatman to the Canton Governor. And as to commissions, was the Governor General authorized to issue commissions or letters of marque. &c.? He objected to anything at all being said Plaintiff's examination was then continturing of pirates. -- By Mr Pollard: There are the commissions. They are in Chinese: I can't speak or read Chinese; they are also in French; and I can't read French. - By Mr Hayllar: Captain De Marcy was in command of the Chun-hoi vesterday morning when I left Canton. On the day in question. I was in the Capsingmoon, and the flags are always hoisted on board by 8 to let me go on shore, and put his hand on my shoulder, saying he took me a prisoner

At a time when foreigners are being so often insulted and annoyed by officials, it is gratifying to find that honesty intelligence, and kind bearing to the merchants are not without their fruits The presentation of a Wan-min-san is an extremely unusual event; the consent of all the Guilds, all powerfu in China, has to be obtained; and one dissentient voice among the 'myriad people is sufficint to veto the proceeding. Mr Davidson should be justly proud of the unusual distinction he appears to have earned so honourably. It may be worth mentioning that the presentation of a 'Wanmin-san' is considered so important an event it is officially recorded by the Taotai in the Magistracy, and is duly noted in every edition of the Records or Topographi cal Annals of the Prefecture. The Magistrate of Tan-tu-hsien (Chinciang) issues a proclamation. The following instructions have been received from H. E.

"With respect to the question of allowing religious establishments within the walls of cities, the Tsung-li Yamen gave their decision on the occasion of a French Missionary. during the 4th year of T'ung chih, renting house of Huei-chi Hsien in Chekiang, The decision was as follows:-" The erection of religious establishments in the interior has been going on for a long time: but as, in point of fact, the Missionaries are all foreigners, when any land is ourchased for religious purposes, the deed of sale should state in so many words that the land is transferred to the public estate of the Roman Catholic Mission of the place. The purchase of land by foreigners as their private property being contrary to treaty should still be prohibited." The deeds issued of late years to French religious establishments in Nanking and Anhwei have all been conformable to this decision. As Chin-kiang is a port open to Foreign Trade, and as in Kiang-au and Anhwei the erection of an establishment and the gift of a public office has been sanctioned, the same rule will apply to Chin-kiang—that is the lease of a house for religious purposes within the walls is what ought also to be sanctioned. In this case, I have no fault to find with you for taking cognizance according Treaty, of the lease by Mr Taylor of the Hsia family's house. What is wrong your conduct is that you, on the repudiation of the lease by the Hsia family, failed to give the proper orders to Wang, Magis. trate of Tan-t'u Hsien, to bring the case to a satisfactory ending by procuring another house, going hurriedly to Soochow instead, while you had promised to Mr Assistant Allen to give these orders. That Magistrate Wang should omit to rebuke the Hsia family for giving a lease and then repudiating it, and also omit to quash all further source of complication by procuring another house, is all the reverse of what was required of him. I need not proceed in any examination of Wang's conduct, as he has already been deprived of his case. As your own remissuess, though cul. of their own people. pable, does not justify removal or report to the Throne, I will not take further notice elsewhere.

If these four points be repeatedly pressed on the attention of the Consul and foreigners, they will no doubt give in their addesion to them. You must also explain for the information of everyone that the propagation of religion is allowed by Treaty, and that no molestation must be offered to the Missionaries. IRREGULAR CUSTOMS. There is a kind of fussiness about all the arrangements connected with the Imperial Maritime Customs which does not very much tend to raise the standing of the service.

Every two or three months, we hear of some new alteration in the regulations. At one time no more British clerks are to be received; after a little the Freuch complement is filled up, and a large number of Americans are sopointed; and again by and bye, a rush is made on small nation people, no matter who, provided that they serve to fill up the requisite number of posts to be given to these nationalities, in order to preserve the cosmopolitan nature the Institution.

Next we hear that the study of Chinese is a to be a sine qua non, and mysterious pictures are given of how Mr Hart suddenly and unexpectedly made his appearance, and found that the employes were not ready: how he sentenced all but one to outer darkness, but raised to a higher sphere the happy individual who was able to ask the linguist whether he wished to go to Tientwithin the city shall be let to, or held by sin in a foreign steamer. In fact the Inspectorate is gradually becoming far too Chinese in all its details. style, which go so far towards inducing respect with western nations, but which are unknown to all easterns. The latest illustration of this kind of-thing which we have heard of is an order which has gone forth that every clerk in the Service shall prepare a report respectng the nature of his own particular department. What the object of these reports is, is of course not said; but it is clear enough, we imagine, that they, like the Tariff details, are chiefly designed with the object of thrusting the Inspectorate down the piplomatic throats of foreign Governments, and forcing them to recognise it as a fait accompli of no small importance, while the real difficulty as to duties on foreign goods brought to China continues altogether unchecked. It seems that as Sir Rutherford Alcock had memorials from the Consuls, so must Mr Hart have his memorials from the Customs' clerks and Commissioners; although it is tolerably certain that all the information that he can derive from these reports is only such as, if he were attending to his duty of Inspector General of Customs, and visiting the offices at the various ports, would be entirely at his fingers' ends.

It is probably in consequence of Mr Hart's not looking after his legitimate duties of directing the actual working of the Customs that much of the fussiness which has of late become so apparent, has risen up. It is tolerably clear that the Inspector General of Customs ought to be in a central port, where he can be referred to at any moment upon any question of importance that may arise. Instead of this for a great part of the year, he is ice-bound in Peking; and it must take a lengthened time to communicate with him. Much of the troubles and inconveniences which at time arise, would be obviated if Mr Hart gave his attention to his legitimate business, instead of running his head against a post by dabbling in politics, which are not his province, and which he shows himself incapable of understanding.—Recorder.
